In conclusion Mr. Peckham says the members of the council of the order are members to holders. The salient points of Villard's plan are a consolidated mortgage of $160, 600,000, which is to be used for the retirement of the outstanding first, second and more symbolic Mason can ignore the edict of his grand lodge, which interdicts third mortgage bonds and other securities his doing so. guaranteed by the Northern Pacific railroad company, and which is also to be applied to the financial needs, present and future, of the company. It is not intended to issue at present more than $15,000,000 of the consolidated mortgage bonds, which will be used to provide for indispensable improvements, enlargement of terminal localities, permanent betterments and improvements on the main line. The Tribune this morning prints the following: The board of directors of the Northern Pacific railway company yesterday voted in favor of a plan for the creation of a consolidated mortgage, not to exceed $160,000,000, the bonds to bear interest at the rate of not more than 5 per cent. per annum. In Wall street the plan is generally spoken of as Henry Villard's and its ultimate object is said to be the refunding of the company's obligations at a lower rate of interest than is now paid. How far in its present shape it may resemble Villard's original proposition could not be learned, as only the outlines of that proposition were ever given to the public. For the present the scheme does not appear to contemplate more than the raising of a moderate sum of money by the issue of bonds, whose negotiations will afford an excellent test of the credit of the Northern Pacific company. Coupled with it, however, is the promise held out to the Milwaukee (Wis.) special: It is estimated by careful officials at encampment headquarters that there will be fully 40,000

The exact amount that is hoped can be negotiated at an early date is undetermined. A prominent director of the Northern Parific estimated it at from $10,000,000 to $15. cific estimated it at from $10,000,000 to $15.000,000. The general street figures being from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. No arrangements have yet been made for the sale of these bonds. The preferred stockholders will be called to meet Oct. 17 to ratify the action of the directors. The date is about one month after the annual election of the company. As security against anylany improvident issue of bonds the approval of nine of the thirteen directors will be required for any issue.
